"FIRST KISS" BY PHILIPPA FRAUMENI

#405

"First Kiss" by Philippa Fraumeni is a 24X24 Acrylic and oil pastels on canvas. It is part of the "What Lies Beneath" series-a collection of paintings focused on memory. Philippa uses markings inspired by ancient cave drawings but also incorporates her signature white out approach where an entire scene is painted and then covered over. The collection explores what we choose to remember, what we celebrate, and what we choose to cover up, but ultimately the human need to leave our mark and prove we were in fact really there.

Philippa Fraumeni, a WUES mother, is a self-taught abstract artist in Houston, Texas. She was inspired to start painting after moving into her own home and remembering her father, a noted artist in his own time, painting whimsical pieces for their rambling Victorian house in Brooklyn, NY while she was growing up. Philippa draws inspiration from her years of study, travel, and work as a fashion stylist manipulating color, pattern, and texture. She prefers to work in acrylics, plaster, and latex paint. When not painting you can find Philippa with her husband and three children, reading design books and scouring estate sales for antiques.
